Hello Fastned team,

Thank you for the opportunity. I have built a partner channel three times from nothing and then managed and developed the partners myself. With 80% of your revenue flowing through partners, that is most of the business here, and it is the part of commercial roles I enjoy and can add most value.

The closest thing I have run to an OEM partnership was in healthcare. For BinaryTech, a medical IoT company of only 15 people with no European presence, I sourced Roche Diagnostics cold and built the value proposition from nothing. It became an exclusive global reseller agreement, seven figures on a three-year minimum.

Most common - it stalled inside Legal and Compliance at an $80B business. Unsticking it meant keeping Roche's commercial sponsors visible so the process carried business pressure, whilst conceding on policy at their scale and holding firm on exclusivity and the minimum commitment.

It ended up being signed. That channel went on to produce multiple NHS sales and a ten-year contract with OLVG, a very large hospital group in Amsterdam. The value built up over years, which I think is what your posting means by bringing the organisation with you.

In terms of leading the team - at Brightcove I led Asia from ~$4M to ~$11.5M ARR at 120%+ of quota. That was a 20+ person team with 15+ ISV/agency partners driving 35% of regional pipeline, and I stayed in the deals myself, including our $12M largest global deal.

On the way of working - at Livepeer I put the commercial operating system in place: forecasting, contracting cadence, documentation and the CRM as the single source of truth. I also build my own go-to-market tooling with AI agents, so the CRM and partner data side is something I can build as well as specify.

To be clear on the gap - I have not worked with car makers, MSPs or navigation providers. The partners are new to me, however long-cycle deals with organisations far bigger than my own are not. Climate and energy is where I have chosen to take that next.

I am based in Valencia, a direct flight from Schiphol, and happy to be in Amsterdam on a regular cadence for the team, the partners and the Board.

Happy to hop on a call to talk through any of the above.

Thanks for your time and your consideration,
Ben Morrell
