Hi Jason,

Congratulations on the move to TrueNAS. Your announcement put resellers, integrators and MSPs at the centre of the plan, and this role is where that gets built. So I wanted to put myself forward for it.

At Brightcove the partner channel grew to source 35% of regional pipeline across Asia, from 15+ ISV and agency partners. The business forecast against that number every quarter, so it had to hold up.

Over the same years I took the region from ~$4M to ~$11.5M ARR, at 120%+ of quota every year. The team was 20+ people across Singapore/Mumbai/New Delhi, channel included, and I managed managers.

More recently I went after Roche Diagnostics for a small medical IoT company with no European channel. The result was an exclusive global reseller agreement through the Roche channel, seven figures over a three-year minimum.

Most of the effort went into getting it through the legal and compliance process of an $80B organisation. Revenue followed: NHS sales and a ten-year contract with OLVG in the Netherlands.

In terms of infrastructure - I started as an engineer. MEng, then broadcast systems for Nine Network, including the Beijing 2008 Olympics, and two years specifying equipment at a systems integrator.

To be clear, I have not sold storage. But media workloads are among the heaviest storage users there are, and I know what a VAR or integrator needs to see before it will carry a vendor's product.

I also build my own GTM tooling (AI agents, CRM automation). I think that matters when a global partner team has to scale programmes and enablement without waiting on engineering.

I work fully remote from Valencia, on CET, with good overlap into US hours. Happy to hop on a call to talk through how you are thinking about the channel in year one.

Thanks Jason,
Ben Morrell
