Hi Veronika and Juraj,

Thank you for the opportunity to put forward an application for the Operations Executive seat. CV attached. The posting says I should finish it thinking I would have written a better job description. I would not have, and that is most of why I am applying.

Firstly - the shape. I have run my own company for seven years (Ziplake, a UK business: 20+ client engagements, every contract and invoice mine). Before that I ran Brightcove's Asia region as VP. Fifteen countries, a team of 20 across Singapore, Mumbai and New Delhi, hiring and performance management owned by me, and the India office formally opened after a long legal project. Boston HQ meant the forecast and the awkward-hour calls ran across time zones every week.

And since the posting counts it: I founded a university lacrosse club and ran it for three years to 80 members.

In terms of your list - contracts: a seven-figure exclusive reseller agreement I negotiated through Roche Diagnostics stalled in their legal/compliance process and got signed because I answered every question fast and complete. Data centres: I started as a broadcast IT engineer on call for 24/7 live output, then specified and stood up the kit at a systems integrator. Sales/CS backbone: that was the region.

Events: I have worked the trade shows and spoken in five countries, but I have not organised a customer conference. Nor have I run a formal compliance programme (SOC 2 etc.). I would rather say both than pretend.

AI is how I work. Agents and a production MCP server on the Claude API, Claude Code daily, a pricing engine, CRM integrations. I also run a Cloudflare Worker that watches every app in my portfolio: health, deploy state, p50/p95 latency, uptime. So I am probably closer to a Better Stack customer than most people applying.

To be clear - fully remote from Valencia, inside European hours, and Prague is a short flight. On "it's intense": I ran a business across nine countries and Covid from a 40-foot boat with two small kids aboard. Working directly with founders is fine.

So - happy to hop on a call to talk through any of the above, or to take one real problem off your list as a test.

Thanks both,
Ben Morrell
