Hello John,

Thank you for the opportunity to put myself forward for Director, Global Partnerships & Channels.

One line in the posting is why I am writing: “We measure partner productivity, not partner count.” At Brightcove I recruited 15+ ISV/agency partners across Asia and that channel drove 35% of regional pipeline. The 35% is how the function was run, reviewed and resourced.

Firstly - the VAR half of the remit, because it is the part I have done most literally. An Australian IoT company had no European channel at all.

I signed Roche Diagnostics, an $80B regulated business, as the distribution partner, then expanded it into an exclusive global reseller agreement, seven figures on a three-year minimum. Local paper, local relationships, in markets a small company could not transact in on its own.

It then stalled inside Roche’s Legal/Compliance review. I kept their commercial sponsors visible so the process carried business pressure, got every question answered fast and complete, and held our side firm on exclusivity and the minimum. The channel produced NHS sales plus a ten-year contract with OLVG in the Netherlands.

I have paired VARs with regional SIs as well. Opening APAC for a US video SaaS company, I signed the region’s largest systems integrator for delivery and customer access and moved qualified pipeline 1200%.

In terms of the operating foundation - at Livepeer there was no commercial process, so I put one in: forecasting, contracting cadence, deal documentation, CRM as the one source of truth. Partner intake, tiering, deal registration and attribution in Salesforce is that job with partners in the middle of it.

To be clear on the gaps, since the JD asks for Direct. I have not run hyperscaler Marketplace listings, private offers or committed-spend motions, and I have not built VARs in LATAM. Asia/EMEA yes, LATAM no. I think the channel build is the harder half to learn, and I would want AWS partner-side help on the rest.

I also build the systems. Partner-sourced/partner-influenced attribution and the reporting on top of it are a systems problem, and I ship LLM applications on the Claude API, a production MCP server and my own CRM automation.

I work fully remote from Valencia, and have run a business across borders and time zones literally from a 40-foot boat. Worth raising early: the posting is anchored on the Americas, so I would need to understand which entity could engage someone resident in Spain.

Happy to hop on a call to talk through any of the above. CV attached.

Thanks John,
Ben Morrell
