Hello Nebius team,

Thanks for putting Spain in the location field. At a company your size that stood out.

Your posting expects the EMEA Solutions Architecture team to specialise and subdivide as it grows. I have done that build before at Brightcove, and it is probably the part I would enjoy most.

Firstly - the arc. I joined Brightcove's 4-person Asia office as a Senior Solutions Engineer. Within three years I was Technical Director, technically responsible for every deal and customer in the region, then Vice President.

As VP I built and led a 20+ person organisation across solutions engineering, sales, channel and customer success, over Singapore, Mumbai and New Delhi, with managers reporting to me.

Customers sat in 15+ countries at very different levels of maturity. The region grew from ~$4M to ~$11.5M ARR at 120%+ of quota every year. Turnover stayed under 10% and 80% of AE promotions were home-grown, which I think is the fairest test of coaching.

Player-coach was the only model that worked. I stepped in on the biggest opportunities, including the company's largest global deal (~$4M ARR), and spent the rest of the week in 1:1s, deal reviews, hiring and PoC scoping.

In terms of EMEA - much of my enterprise work since 2019 has been in Europe. For a small IoT company I took an exclusive global reseller agreement through Roche Diagnostics' legal and compliance process, which led to NHS sales and a 10-year contract with OLVG in the Netherlands.

To be clear on the bonus list - I have not run GPU clusters, Kubernetes platforms or a hyperscaler team.

I build AI applications myself (Claude API, a remote MCP server, Next.js on Vercel), so I know the inference customer's side of the table well. Early on I would lean on your senior SAs for the deep infrastructure whilst I sort out coverage/hiring and the operating rhythm with Sales.

I work fully remote from Valencia, engaged through a non-Spanish entity.

Happy to hop on a call to talk through any of the above. 20 minutes on where EMEA coverage is thinnest today would be a good start.

Thanks for your time and your consideration,
Ben Morrell
