

Ben Morrell

Operations Builder-Operator — Process · Automation · Cross-Functional Delivery

hello@benmorrell.co · +34 711 035 948 · +44 7796 656 897 · linkedin.com/in/morrellbc · github.com/bmorrell · benmorrell.co/alpaca-corporate-ops · Fully remote, from Valencia, Spain
UK / Australian Citizen · Spain Digital Nomad Visa · FTE / Contract

Hi Carlos,

Thank you for the opportunity to put forward an application for the Corporate Operations Lead seat. CV attached. This is the shorter version of why.

Firstly - the shape of the job. Zero context, find the constraint, build the fix, stay until the outcome moves, hand it to a durable owner, move on. That is what I have done from the outside for seven years, across 20+ technology companies. I would like to do it inside one company, where the fix persists.

Two examples. At Livepeer there was traction and no repeatable commercial motion. I mapped the workflow, stood up forecasting, the contracting cadence, documentation/training and the CRM as the system of record, and ran it until the team could. Tier-1 partnerships including Aptos ($500K) closed on that cadence.

At Brightcove I ran a 15-country region as VP and formally opened the India office, which was mostly a legal/finance/people project run with headquarters functions I did not manage. Influence without authority is most of that job.

In terms of leverage - I build the automation myself. AI agents, a production MCP server, a configurable pricing engine, CRM integrations, an observability dashboard. When the right lever is automation I can ship it rather than queue for Engineering. When it is org design or a vendor change, I have done those too.

To be clear on the gaps - I have not worked in brokerage, HR or Finance close, and AML is new to me. The posting says domain expertise is not the job. I think that is right, and I would rather say it than pretend.

One more thing. This is an IC seat and I last held a VP title. That is deliberate. Six years wide, and now I want depth: one company, and outcomes I own long enough to compound.

I work fully remote from Valencia, inside EMEA hours, and I ran a business across nine countries and Covid from a 40-foot boat. Remote and self-directed is simply how I work.

So - happy to hop on a call to talk through any of the above, and to hear which constraint is top of the list right now.

Thanks Carlos,
Ben Morrell