Hello Päivi and Oskari,

Thanks for being so clear about the shape of this role. Five months running the whole sales org, then building international sales from there.

Your posting asks for a sales leader who can manage a team and still close deals personally. That was my job at Brightcove for five years.

As VP Asia I led a 20+ person team over Singapore, Mumbai and New Delhi, with customers in 15+ countries. The region grew from ~$4M to ~$11.5M ARR at 120%+ of quota every year. I still sat in the biggest deals, including the company's largest global deal (~$4M ARR, $12M over three years).

In terms of new markets - we opened Vietnam, Taiwan, Thailand and the Philippines ($2M+ new ARR) and I opened the India office.

Since then I have opened APAC for Encoding.com and Europe for an Australian IoT hardware company, through an exclusive reseller agreement with Roche Diagnostics. That one led to NHS sales and a 10-year contract with OLVG in the Netherlands.

Long cycles and capital purchases are familiar too. I sold broadcast playout systems across 12+ Asian countries at Grass Valley before Brightcove.

To be clear - Nordic electricity markets are new ground for me. I'm an engineer by training (MEng) and I build software myself, so I think I'd get to grips with spot/intraday/balancing and how Spine trades them quickly, with your trading team as the sounding board.

With that in mind, the interim period is probably where I'd add most: keep deal flow and the forecast steady, and back the team on the large deals whilst I learn the market.

I work fully remote from Valencia and I'm happy to be in Helsinki regularly. I can start in December.

Happy to hop on a call to talk through any of the above.

Thanks for your time and your consideration,
Ben Morrell
