Hello,

Thanks for writing the Senior Channel Account Manager posting as plainly as you did. One requirement is why I am applying: build channel programmes and process, not only operate within an established one.

At Brightcove I recruited 15+ ISV and agency partners across Asia and that channel drove 35% of regional pipeline. That was the number the function was run and resourced against, whilst I grew the region from ~$4M to ~$11.5M ARR.

Firstly - the build. An Australian IoT company had a dormant Roche Diagnostics relationship and no European channel at all. I turned it into an exclusive global reseller agreement, seven figures on a three-year minimum.

It then stalled inside Roche's Legal and Compliance review, which is where most of these quietly die. I kept their commercial sponsors visible so the process carried business pressure, and held our side firm on exclusivity and the minimum. That channel produced NHS sales plus a ten-year contract with OLVG in the Netherlands.

In terms of the partner mix - integrators/resellers is the motion I came up through. At Grass Valley I sold playout infrastructure across 12+ Asian countries almost entirely through them, and later signed APAC's largest systems integrator for Encoding.com.

Before that I did solutions engineering inside an integrator. So I know what a partner wants from a vendor before putting their own people on it.

The agentic half I can do myself. I build LLM applications on the Claude API, AI agents and a production MCP server. Your partners have to get enterprise buyers comfortable with deterministic execution and agentic reasoning in one governed engine. That enablement probably reads better written by someone who has shipped the thing.

To be clear on two gaps. I have not worked in network automation/NetOps, and I have not built a GSI or federal-SI practice, so the Nomios/Logicalis end of your partner grid I would get to faster than Leidos and CACI.

On the seat - I have run a region and a 20+ person team, and I am applying to an IC charter deliberately. Building the UK motion from a standing start is the work I want.

Worth raising early that I am a UK citizen, fully remote from Valencia on CET and in the UK on a regular cadence. So the open question is which entity engages someone resident in Spain. Your London EMEA base suggests that is answerable.

I have run a business across borders and time zones literally from a 40-foot boat, so remote and self-directed is simply how I work.

Happy to hop on a call to talk through any of the above. CV attached.

Thanks for your time and your consideration,
Ben Morrell
